

A vivid description of a "Lid," the description written by a man and the lid worn by a woman, is given in an eastern publication. The description is so faithful as to call forth the admiration of even a milliner, and besides showing the hat and its wearer, it shows just how much a man knows about headgear—which is in itself interesting. It follows:

To begin with, it was shaped like a bucket—a ten-inch high bucket—woven of delicate pink straw, with cross-cuts and droll switches of green matting interlacing the pattern. It has a round top and a vision—the vision of a urban dress parade bonnet—but not in front. We should say not. That vision was on one side and gave the demure impression that the lady was looking off to one side.

But that was only a beginning. That bucket hat had something on the front of it that resembled a cross between the Oklahoma coat-of-arms and King Menelik's breast plate. The center of this ornament was a sort of medallion made of lapis-lazuli stone and then wound and wound with strings of pearls—rather imitation pearls—about the size of robin's eggs. The center-piece, contrived, said Mrs. Higham, is known in the region of its usual captivity as a "cabochon."

The pearls wound around it until it grew to about four and one-half inches in diameter. Then the pearls branched off and formed a braid about the hat, a brilliant, gaudy, concealing, eye-obscuring braid.

But the garnishing of that lid did not stop at the "cabochon" thing. A gorgeous ostrich plume took root in one of the twisting coils of pearls and waved itself aloft and around and about, hither and yon, like the prize feather in the tail of an excited cassowary. No matter what angle you looked at that feather it seemed to beat you to it around the hat.

An eastern paper has made a very readable column article out of the fact that the women of Chile do not disagree with their lords and masters, saying among other words of wisdom, that it's none of a woman's business what time a man comes home at night—or morning, as the case may be. "The chances are," says this wise one, "that he just got in with a few friends, had some drinks and possibly would have been unable to come home at the proper time even if the inclination was there. What an excellent course to pursue. And, surely, in Chile they have heard of the saying 'It's a poor rule that won't work both ways.'"

There were few in the audience, of course, who suspected that the dozen American beauties occupying the stalls were seekers after truth yesterday, but the fact remains that following the play they were taken within the inner recesses and treated to a revelation, to say the least, of the fair Lillian's secrets in the art of preserving—not the usual process at all, and nothing to do with the pecking season—but the art of preserving, nevertheless. Such results as may be witnessed later on will doubtless add to the fame of the stage beauty, while not detracting from the charms of the local belles.

So the fate for the ancient and honorable game of keno has revived, and the place so long held by bridge is about to be usurped by the more fascinating "call" game. Miss Mayme Noble gave a resuscitating party on Friday evening, at which a score of her friends renewed their acquaintance with the game, and Lieutenant and Mrs. Paul Potter proved themselves apt, while Mr. Keyes and Miss Ethel Mout showed such a lack of familiarity with the game that they were awarded special souvenirs.

A number of Salt Lakers who are planning the Honolulu trip for the early spring are making arrangements to take their motor cars along and enjoy the good roads there. It is said that motoring there is a greater joy than anyone not familiar with the beautiful roads can conceive.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Doctors Say There is a Harmless, Safe and Sure Way to Remove Superfluous Hair.

Dr. Fowler, who has made a thorough study of superfluous hair growth, speaking of a case in which he used DeMiracle, says: "I applied DeMiracle, and in a few minutes I had her hair devoid of hair without any pain whatever. I instructed her to call again in two weeks, which she did. I found about one-fourth of the hair roots were not killed by the first application, so I made a second application. I saw her again in about a month, and found her hair as clear as the hair of an infant. I can heartily recommend DeMiracle for all the uses for which the manufacturers recommend it."

It is well to remember that DeMiracle is absolutely non-poisonous, antiseptic and germicidal, therefore it will not produce local poisoning or eczema, which is so common with hair removers. DeMiracle is the only method in the hair world endorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines. DeMiracle mailed, sealed in plain wrapper, for $1. Your money back without question (no red tape) if it fails to do all that is claimed for it. Booklet free in plain sealed envelope by the DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept. 2, 199 Park ave., New York. For sale by Druehl & Franken, 271 South Main, Salt Lake city, and all good stores.

Those present were the Misses Evadna Houtz, Lillian Chapman, Elsie Taysum, Amelia Knapton, Edith Cissoid, Crystal Snow, Hazel Edwards, Ethel Carney, Florence Lewis and Mrs. Anne Adams, the latter being director of the club. Next Thursday evening Miss Amelia Knapton will enter the club members at 500.

Miss Agnes Wilson entertained at a party Friday evening at her home, 877 West First South street. Those present were Hazel Edwards, Ethel Carney, Frances Crater, Jean Ingalls, Sadie Baldwin, Agnes Wilson, Tillie Alexander, Adrienne Margetts, Andrew Ben-Morris Tibbs, Tom Bishop and Willard Conley.

Mrs. George Payne entertained a few relatives and friends Wednesday evening at her home, 877 West First South street. Those present were Miss Harriet Westoby, Mark Carney and Elmer Jensen. The guests were the Misses Lena Rose, Desie Burt, Frank Sims, Cora Platt, Nita Rose, Nell Robinson, Harriet Westoby, Vera Lambourne, and the Messrs. Ed Strommen, Owen Douglass, Paul Roberts, Elmer Jensen, Gerald Ayers, Pat Harlin, Roy Jones, Wallace Wright, Harold Dagget, Mark Carney, Joe Brown, George Lovell, Horace Parker and Austin Malcolm.

Miss Mabel Lambourne entertained a number of friends at cards on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Sidney Lambourne, when prizes were won by Miss Harriet Westoby, Mark Carney and Elmer Jensen. The guests were the Misses Lena Rose, Desie Burt, Frank Sims, Cora Platt, Nita Rose, Nell Robinson, Harriet Westoby, Vera Lambourne, and the Messrs. Ed Strommen, Owen Douglass, Paul Roberts, Elmer Jensen, Gerald Ayers, Pat Harlin, Roy Jones, Wallace Wright, Harold Dagget, Mark Carney, Joe Brown, George Lovell, Horace Parker and Austin Malcolm.

Miss Afton Pace will give a Sat. Patriotic party on Wednesday evening for some of her young friends.

The first of a series of social evening parties to be given by the ladies of the Unitarian church was given on Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mahan at their residence on B street. Mr. and Mrs. Mahan are ideal hosts, and every one of the fifty or more persons present felt at once the hospitable atmosphere of this delightful home.

Music and readings were a part of the evening's program. Miss Mary Phelps, A. M. of Pasadena, was the guest at the home of the Unitarian minister, had consented to contribute some readings to the evening's entertainment. Miss Phelps is a woman of rare power as a reader, and charm and her listeners by her versatile talents. She first gave a selection from Mark Twain. Next she gave a masterly reading of "The Birds' Banquet" at once a unique and beautiful sketch, and a model of vocal versatility of the highest order. As an encore, Miss Phelps gave a humorous selection. John P. Meakin was present and responded in a series of characteristic sketches, mingling his own humor with keen thrusts of truth. Mrs. Frank Larson, the gifted daughter of Orson Pratt, was called on and proved her histrionic ability by rendering the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet."

Mrs. Frank E. Browning, the soprano of Unity quartette, and well known as a singer in the city, responded to the enthusiastic calls of the company with several selections. W. A. Richardson, who possesses a rich baritone voice, was also much appreciated. The regular program was fittingly completed by an instrumental piece by Miss Irma Watson. Refreshments were then served. An incidental purpose of the party was the raising of money to clear the church building of debt. The voluntary offerings for this purpose were generous and gratifying.

Three topics of interest to Salt Lakers were presented before the Ladies' Literary club at the last meeting, held Friday afternoon. Dr. John Sundwall of the university faculty, speaking on "The Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis," Frank B. Stephens on "The Des Moines Plan," and Colonel Sterrett on the coming G. A. R. meeting. Mrs. Byron Cummings, the head of the State Federation, presided over the meeting, and club women of all clubs in the city were invited to be present.

Dr. Sundwall advocated a better system of caring for the public health, better air and better food for the people, and while he stated that the women could do more than anyone else in this matter, he also stated that the expectation habit is responsible for a great deal of the spread of the disease.

Colonel Sterrett made a patriotic talk covering the period in the growth of the nation before the civil war, and showing the reasons for the existence of the G. A. R. He closed with a few words on the work of the women in preparing for the encampment.

The music of the afternoon was excellent. Miss Mary Olive Gray and Miss Williamson playing a magnificent concerto by Mendelssohn in three movements, Miss Gray taking the second piano. Later Miss Renee Rodman sang two vocal numbers, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Davis.

The Spirit of Liberty chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held the March meeting on Thursday last at Mrs. Russell L. Tracy at her home in Popperston. Mrs. Frank B. Stephens had charge of the program, and she had prepared a fine program of the patriotic numbers. Mrs. Morris L. Ritchie read a new story of her own called "The Divine Right to Happiness," and Miss Florence Veness, the winner of the D. A. R. medal, gave her oration on "The Larger Patriotism." Mrs. Andrews played two violin solos, accompanied by her sister, "Romance" and "Cavatina."

The current events and current literature section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Stowe in Federal Heights. Mrs. Stephenson will discuss Shelly and his life, and his treatment of nature. She will give a critical study of his "Skylark," and compare it with Wordsworth's "Skylark," and will read his "Ode to the West Wind."

The P. E. O. society held its annual election of officers at the last meeting, when the following were elected: President, Mrs. John Reed; vice president, Miss A. E. Buchanan; recording secretary, Mrs. A. C. Watts; corresponding secretary, Miss Heleena Critzer; treasurer, Mrs. Hugo Druehl; chaplain, Mrs. A. J. Gorham; guard, Miss Cora Clark. The society meets next Saturday with Miss Esther Allen at 929 First avenue.

The music section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the club house. The sketches of Henry Gilbert and Harvey W. Loomis, continued from the last meeting, will be given by Mrs. L. Hancock. Mrs. C. C. Snyder will sing the "Mexicana," by Loomis. Papers on Arthur Farrell and Frederick Ayres will be given by Mrs. Druehl, and Mrs. C. P. Brooks will tell of her recent visit to Mr. Farrell and Mr. Shepherd at Newton Center. Musical selections will be given by Mrs. Alvah Lewis, Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Wetzel and Mrs. Cook. Club members are cordially invited.

The Ladies' Reading club met with Mrs. W. S. Hudson Monday afternoon. A very interesting review of "The Last Days of Pompeii" was given by Mrs. E. V. Smith. The club has finished the course in "Renaissance and Modern Art." Next meeting, March 22, will be with Mrs. J. S. Sanborn, 706 North First West street.

Wasatch Literary circle meets Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Byron Cummings and Miss Cummings, 928 East Eleventh South street, instead of Gunton Memorial chapel. There will not be a meeting on the 31st of March, as planned.

The tourist section of the Ladies' Literary club meets on Tuesday morning at the club house, when Mrs. Ellen Elliott will give a talk on Tolstain and his works, and Mrs. George M. Bacon will tell of her experiences in Finland and of the Finns.

The next meeting of the Utah Archaeological society will be held next Saturday evening with Professor and Mrs. J. T. Kingsbury, when Robert Lindsay McElroy of the university faculty will speak on "The Roman Forum."

The art section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet Thursday morning at the club house. Mrs. C. L. Hood will speak on the "Architecture of Munich."

The College club meets Thursday afternoon next with Mrs. Harman and Mrs. Tyndale at the Tyndale home, 176 Eleventh East street.

FISHER BEER

A Beverage of Character

After the blindfolded wine taster had sampled a glass of water, his verdict was that it did not "have character enough to ever become a popular drink." In Fisher beer you have that same water boiled to make it pure; charged with carbonic acid gas to make it lively. Salt extract in solution adds the quality of nourishment and a dash of hops a slightly bitter. Just enough alcohol is developed in brewing to make it stimulating and refreshing. Result: A beverage with character; a sturdy drink that sparkles with life and strength-giving qualities.
